Statement of Acting Commissioner of the United States Customs Service
Charles Winwood
Before the United States Senate Committee on the Judiciary
2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, Utah; Cooperation among Federal, State, and Local Agencies to Address Public Safety Concerns

Mr. Chairman, members of the Committee, thank you for this opportunity to testify on the law enforcement mission of the U.S. Customs Service at the 2002 Winter Olympic Games in Salt Lake City, Utah.

As you are aware, the Customs Service plays a vital role in protecting the national security of the United States. In addition to defending our nation's borders from narcotics and other harmful contraband, Customs' broad mission includes the investigation of economic threats to American business such as the violation of Intellectual Property Rights. The agency also plays an important role in deterring terrorist threats and the smuggling of weapons of mass destruction.

Our law enforcement mission at the Olympic games derives from both these core responsibilities and from Presidential Decision Directive-62 (PDD-62). Under PDD-62 the Customs Service is assigned special counter-terrorism duties in coordination with other law enforcement agencies for those events deemed by the President to require such measures.

In support of the 2002 Winter Olympics, Customs will enhance its overall investigative and inspection activities to correspond with the increased volume of international passengers and cargo anticipated for this event. To accomplish this goal, we will strengthen personnel resources in key areas as determined by our Office of Field Operations and Office of Investigations, the two lead departments for this task.

At the same time, we will work to ensure that our processes remains efficient and transparent, and that our law enforcement responsibilities do not conflict with the smooth entry of equipment, cargo, and individuals participating in or attending the XIX Winter Olympic Games and VIII Paralympic Winter Games.

Turning to our specific role in Salt Lake City: IPR violations represent the single most significant threat for Customs during the 2002 Winter Olympic Games. In recent years, there has been an enormous consumer interest in Olympic merchandise. Individuals attending the Olympic venues are eager to purchase souvenirs and Olympic memorabilia. Not surprisingly, counterfeit goods have flooded the communities surrounding Olympic venues. The Salt Lake Organizing Committee (SLOC), the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC), and the International Olympic Committee (IOC) are greatly concerned with any erosion of rights, benefits or privileges granted to official Olympic sponsors, suppliers or licensees.

U.S. Customs will temporarily assign an additional 42 special agents to conduct an IPR Special Operation during the Olympic Games. The Special Operation is designed to disrupt the importation and distribution network of counterfeit Olympic merchandise and allow for prosecution of significant offenders. Also, 12 laboratory technicians will be detailed to the Olympics to provide investigative support during the IPR enforcement initiatives.

U.S. Customs and the Salt Lake Olympic Committee supported a change to the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States, heading 9817.60.00, which was enacted in 2000. This change allows for the duty free importation of equipment, material, and personal property associated with participants in the 2002 Salt Lake City Winter Olympics, and the 2002 Paralympic Games.

Customs will deploy 30 TDY inspectional personnel to Salt Lake City for our core responsibilities at the Winter Olympics (February 8 – 24, 2002) and 4 TDY personnel for our core responsibilities at the VIII Paralympic Winter Games (March 7-16, 2002).

Customs will temporarily assign an analyst to the Olympics to support the Intellectual Property Rights enforcement initiatives during the month of February 2002. The analyst will have access to multiple databases that will assist in targeting for suspect violations and will provide support to investigations.

Customs has identified New York, Atlanta, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Miami, and Seattle as the primary gateway airports for athletes and tourists. These locations will be the focus of our efforts to bolster personnel resources. In addition, Customs will temporarily assign 213 inspectors along the Northern Border.

PDD-62 distributes primary responsibility for security at the Winter 2002 Olympics among three federal agencies: The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), which is responsible for crisis management; the U.S. Secret Service (USSS), which has jurisdiction over the planning and implementation of security; and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), which will oversee consequence management (natural disasters).

The U.S. Secret Service has conducted site surveys for the 15 Olympic venues under the direction of PDD-62 and concluded that 1,981 federal law enforcement personnel will be required to secure the Olympic events. Customs has been tasked by the Under Secretary of the Treasury (Enforcement) to supply 200 special agents to augment the USSS security mission.

The FBI has requested support from the U.S. Customs Service for their counter-terrorism responsibilities during the 2002 Winter Olympics and Paralympics in Salt Lake City, Utah. This support will include a Senior Intelligence Research Specialist being temporarily assigned to the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command Center (UOPSC).

Customs will be a part of a multi-agency command center that will have the mission of providing National Level counter-terrorism intelligence to law enforcement. The command center will develop, disseminate, and coordinate intelligence addressing counter-terrorism and protection of our country's National Security.

Under PDD-62 designated National Special Security Events, Customs has the unique role to enforce air space security under the USSS implementation plan. For the 2002 Winter Olympics, the Customs Tucson Air Interdiction Branch is the lead air asset coordinator, with other air branches lending personnel and equipment. The mission of airspace security is to prevent the disruption of Olympic events in all venues by an airborne threat. The overall objectives of the Customs Airspace Security Plan for the 2002 Winter Olympics are to enhance public safety, detect and sort potential air threats, early notification of intrusive activities, identify and deter unauthorized entries into Temporary Flight Restrictions, track aircraft to designated "handoff" areas for further investigation, and respond to an aggressive act in the appropriate tactical manner.

Temporary Flight Restrictions (TFR's) will be established over the 10 Winter Game venues to limit aircraft access. Airspace Security Operations will be conducted on a 24x7 basis to identify and sort aircraft operating within the vicinity of the TFR's. Customs Detection Systems Specialists, in cooperation with FAA controllers, will detect, monitor and provide advisories to aircraft within the TFR's. Customs aircraft will conduct airspace security flights in and around the TFR's. Unauthorized aircraft that violate TFR's will be identified and potential violators will be directed to depart the TFR's and tracked to their landing sites. Violators will be handed off to law enforcement officials for interview or detention.

The Customs aviation component will be phased in on January 26, 2002 and phased out on February 26, 2002. This allows for briefings with day and night training and familiarization flights. The Aircraft utilized to cover the Airspace Security mission will include: one AS-350 light enforcement helicopter; two CE-550 jet interceptors; and four UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters. An additional UH-60, CE-550 and a C-12 (multi-use utility aircraft) will be on ready relief at Davis-Monthan Air Base, Tucson, Arizona. Eighty personnel will be temporarily assigned to accomplish this mission that include aircrew, management and maintenance.

The Customs Service, in cooperation with other Treasury Bureaus, is installing a six site, six channel per site, Very High Frequency (VHF), digital, narrowband voice and data communications system to support tactical communications requirements during the 2002 Winter Olympics. One or more repeater channels at each site will be wirelined to the Customs National Law Enforcement Communications Center (NLECC) in Orlando, Florida. Four additional base stations will be wirelined to the Customs NLECC and will be connected to Hill Air Force Base to support Customs air-ground-air requirements.

Additional communications equipment will be installed at various locations within the Salt Lake City area to support Customs inspection and investigative functions. Three Tactical Communications Officers (TCOs) will assist in providing on-site technical and maintenance support of the communications system and will program and oversee maintenance of 50 mobile, 220 portable and 2 consolette radios to be used by Customs personnel. The NLECC will provide Over-The-Air-Rekeying (OTAR) voice privacy encryption for all Treasury radios, including the Secret Service protective force, and will provide officer safety tactical communications and investigative database support to Customs and other Treasury officers supporting the Olympics.

For FY 2001, Customs Olympic funding requirements are approximately $2.3 million for core mission and PDD-62 responsibilities. For FY 2002, Customs total Olympic funding requirements are approximately $18.7 million. $10.3 million is required to support core mission responsibilities, $3.5 million is necessary for PDD-62 ground support requirements, and $4.9 million is needed for our PDD-62 air operations.

Mr. Chairman, this concludes my statement. On behalf of the men and women of the U.S. Customs Service, I would like to thank you and the members of this Committee for your constant support of federal law enforcement and our efforts to ensure a safe and successful 2002 Winter Olympics.

Order in the court!

By Thomas L. Jipping

When Democrats take control of the Senate next week, they will shut down the judicial confirmation process.

While majority status - and with it control of the Senate's agenda and process - provides them new weapons, the Democrats' unprecedented campaign to block President Bush's judicial appointments began months ago. What they had begun to do defensively, however, they now can do offensively. The Democratic obstruction campaign includes a series of tactics and misleading rhetoric.

According to the New York Times, for example, incoming Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy plans to "block any judicial nominees ... [who] would tip the balance of the federal courts." That's the tactic. Here's the rhetoric: Tipping whatever balance Democrats wish to preserve would be, in Senator Leahy's words, "ideological court-packing."

This argument is not new. Democrats took control of the Senate with a Republican in the White House in 1987. They used the book "God Save This Honorable Court" by Harvard law professor Laurence Tribe to change the rules confirmation engagement. Focusing on the Supreme Court, he urged the Senate to reject even eminently qualified nominees who would change the Court's "balance" in either a liberal or conservative direction. The Senate, he wrote, was "a ballast" needed to correct "the drift of the Supreme Court as represented by a given appointment."

Well, here we go again. Professor Tribe met with 42 Senate Democrats in April to again plot confirmation strategy. With their majority windfall, Senator Leahy is again singing from the Tribe script but this time applying its radical tune to all judicial appointments.

Senate Democrats don't care that the Constitution gives the power to appoint judges to the president, not to them. And they don't care about any sort of "balance" in general. Rather, dressed in Professor Tribe's misleading rhetoric for public relations consumption only, they care about preserving a particular "balance" because they like the decisions that balance produces.

When they sang Professor Tribe's tune in 1987, Senate Democrats sought to preserve a Supreme Court balance that had produced decisions on abortion and other subjects generally to their liking. Suiting up again as Professor Tribe's loyal confirmation soldiers, they want to preserve an overall balance produced by President Clinton's 374 judicial appointments. With 55 percent of all full-time judges Democrat appointees, it's no wonder they are now playing the "balance" game.

As in 1987, it's a tough sell to claim that President Bush may not appoint qualified men and women who will interpret rather than make law. Lots of junior high kids still learn in civics class that judges aren't supposed to make law. Coached by Professor Tribe, Senate Democrats instead want to change the subject altogether and use the rhetoric of maintaining some sort of balance, of preventing that "ideological court-packing" thing.

There's a certain weird consistency here. The activist judges whose power these Democrats now want to preserve, change and morph the Constitution and statutes, tweaking the meaning here and adding a few provisions there, rearranging the law as they go along to suit their political taste. Then, when judges have reworked everything to the liberals' liking, we hear the call to respect judicial precedents and honor the "rule of law." Whether it's this fake, politically-driven devotion to the rule of the law or the present call for preserving the "balance of the federal courts," Senate Democrats simply want a judiciary imposing liberal results the people have rejected.

How will Senate Democrats implement this "balance" rule, especially now that it apparently applies to the entire judiciary? Of the 101 vacancies on the federal district and appeals courts today, 61 had been filled by Republican appointees, 27 by Democrat appointees, and 13 resulted from creation of new positions. Will they demand that President Bush appoint only Democrats to replace vacating Democrats? This approach will, of course, require some regulations guiding President Bush's appointments to those 13 new positions that have never been filled.

President Bush's recent nomination of Democrat Roger Gregory to a

unfilled appeals court position apparently does not balance his nomination of Republican Terrence Boyle to a seat formerly held by a Carter appointee. Trained in confirmation politics by Professor Tribe, Senator John Edwards (D-NC), is using the "balance" argument to oppose the Boyle nomination until President Bush nominates liberal state court judge James Wynn to another appeals court vacancy.

Senator Leahy's "balance of the federal courts" rule might refer to ideology rather than simply to party affiliation. This, of course, lacks even a claim of objectivity and would require the very ideological litmus tests that Democrats once condemned.

The wild card in all this is the position of incoming Majority Leader Tom Daschle. On May 6, before Senator James Jeffords' party defection made him majority leader, he insisted "we don't want right-wingers" on the bench. On May 26, after the defection, he said he does not support Senator Charles Schumer's vow that "no more of these right-wing judges [will] be getting through." Senator Daschle is simply playing the good cop to Senator Schumer's bad cop. Senator Schumer, who serves on Senator Leahy's Judiciary Committee, is already the de facto leader of the confirmation wrecking crew.
The bad cop will win.

Senate Democrats are poised to once again drag judicial confirmations into the political swamp. They are using the same song-sheet, prepared by the same composer, as they have before. Tragically, this strategy will once again politicize judicial selection and threaten judicial independence.

Conservatives Remain Bullish Despite Senate Setback

By ROBIN TONER

W <http://graphics.nytimes.com/images/dropcap/w.gif> ASHINGTON, May 30 - Confronting the loss of the first all-Republican government in nearly 50 years, after a scant four months in power, many conservatives profess to be undaunted.

Angry, yes. Senator James M. Jeffords's decision to leave the party and become an independent, which threw the Senate to the Democrats, was denounced today by Senator Trent Lott, the outgoing majority leader, as "a coup of one," on a radio show popular with conservative listeners.

Conservatives have concluded that it is Mr. Jeffords who is to blame for the sudden Senate power shift, not them - an argument that Mr. Lott was more than happy to embrace on his own behalf.

"There is only one person to blame for all this, and that's Jim Jeffords," said Mr. Lott, who appeared to be trying to shore up his base after a week of criticism from all sides, including some from the right. "He was often very liberal in his views and quite often agreed more with Ted Kennedy" than other Republicans, Mr. Lott added.

In defiance of the newly Democratic Senate, many conservative leaders are urging President Bush to hang tough and keep pushing for conservative principles, particularly, some say, on judicial nominations. Not surprisingly, they reject the idea that the Republicans lost Mr. Jeffords and the Senate because the Bush administration tacked too far to the right. In fact, some conservatives say the Jeffords defection shows the folly of trying too hard to mollify the party's moderates.

That tough tone was reflected in a Jeffords headline in the conservative journal Human Events: "Extremist Senator Quits G.O.P." Phyllis Schlafly, president of the Eagle Forum, described the Jeffords move as "kind of a stab in the back to all his friends in the Senate." In a column for National Review, Stephen Moore, president of the Club for Growth, a conservative political action committee, declared dismissively, "Jeffords was a political dinosaur, a throwback to an era long gone."

David Keene, chairman of the American Conservative Union, said, "The other moderates say the lesson in this is that George Bush and the Congressional leadership ought to let them steer the ship. But they are, after all, the tail and not the dog."

Mr. Keene, in a sentiment echoed by other conservatives, argued that giving too much power and cutting too many deals with Mr. Jeffords and other moderates over the years had helped blur the image of Senate Republicans and ultimately weaken their majority.

The conservatives' reaction is complicated - and tempered - by the remarkable victory they won, almost simultaneously, on the $1.35 trillion tax cut that was the centerpiece of the Bush and the conservative agenda. At the regular Wednesday meeting today of his influential "center-right coalition," the conservative strategist Grover Norquist argued that the tax cut essentially tied the hands of the new Democratic majority.

"Nothing that Daschle wants or Ted Kennedy wants is for free," Mr. Norquist said. Senator Tom Daschle of South Dakota is expected to become the majority leader and Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts is in line to be chairman of the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee.

"We're going to spend the next two years talking about how the Democrats in the Senate want to spend your money," Mr. Norquist said later. "This is not a loser position; this is a winning position."

Mr. Norquist was bullish about the prospects of more tax cuts, in defiance of conventional wisdom, including a cut in the capital gains tax.

Under the glass-half-full analysis, many conservatives argued that the Democrats will now be clearly held accountable for spending, for obstructing presidential initiatives, for blocking nominations. Asked if the party was, in fact, better off without Mr. Jeffords, Mr. Norquist said, "For the purposes of the 2002 election, the answer is yes."

If the party cannot have a true, governing majority in the Senate, the argument goes, better a sharp contrast to help win a majority in the next election.

Mr. Lott advanced a similar argument today, in back-to-back interviews with the Oliver L. North and Sean Hannity radio programs. While he would rather remain in the majority, Mr. Lott said, there was "something liberating about being in the minority" and being freer to push the proposals "you really think should be adopted."

He seemed to look forward to devising his party's new, minority strategy, now that talk of a challenge to his leadership from other Republican senators had quieted down.

Others, however, are more openly worried about the loss of the Senate. Paul Weyrich, a longtime conservative activist, said, "Some are glad that Jeffords is gone; they think it's good riddance. Others, like me, while I didn't particularly care for him in the Republican Party, the change he bought about is a very, very unfortunate development for the Bush agenda, which is largely the conservative agenda. It's going to make it very difficult for the president, very difficult to advance anything at all for the next 18 months."

William Kristol, editor of the conservative Weekly Standard, said he believed that many conservatives were simply in denial. He also noted that the conservative establishment retained a striking amount of faith in the Bush administration and its commitment to the conservative agenda.

"And maybe they're right to do so," Mr. Kristol added. "He delivered the tax cut. But when you ask them, Won't he now deliver a moderate for the Supreme Court, they say, Oh, no, he'll figure out a way" to get around the difficult politics.

In fact, there is widespread agreement that judicial nominations are where the loss of the Senate will be felt most acutely. But Richard Lessner, executive director of American Renewal, the lobbying arm of the conservative Family Research Council, argues that Mr. Bush will get a fight from liberal Democrats almost regardless of whom he nominates.

"We would like the president to stick to his oft-repeated promise from the campaign that he will nominate strict constructionists and his model will be Justices Thomas and Scalia. If he sticks to that, we'll be very happy," Mr. Lessner said - and Mr. Bush will be able to count on an energized conservative base.

In the end, many conservatives seemed unconvinced by the conventional wisdom that Mr. Bush must now, fundamentally, shift his agenda.

"Punditry analysis is like water off a duck's back to conservatives," said Ed Gillespie, a conservative lobbyist and strategist. "There aren't many of us in the punditocracy. From our perspective, we can still govern in a center-right capacity, which is how Mr. Bush has governed, and be successful doing so."

And as for the accusation that conservatives lack tolerance for the party's moderates and liberals, Mr. Keene said, "While I think in most cases these are folks who ought to be welcomed to the party, and we ought to work with them on issues when you agree, I can tell you that when Jim Jeffords and his friends were in charge, they didn't give a lot of time to conservatives."

O rder in the court!
By Thomas L. Jipping

When Democrats take control of the Senate next week, they will shut down the judicial confirmation process.

While majority status - and with it control of the Senate's agenda and process - provides them new weapons, the Democrats' unprecedented campaign to block President Bush's judicial appointments began months ago. What they had begun to do defensively, however, they now can do offensively. The Democratic obstruction campaign includes a series of tactics and misleading rhetoric.

According to the New York Times, for example, incoming Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy plans to "block any judicia l nominees ... [who] would tip the balance of the federal courts." That's the tactic. Here's the rhetoric: Tipping whatever balance Democrats wish to preserv e would be, in Senator Leahy's words, "ideological court-packing."

This argument is not new. Democrats took control of the Senate with a Republican in the White House in 1987. They used the book "Go d Save This Honorable Court" by Harvard law professor Laurence Tribe to change th e rules confirmation engagement. Focusing on the Supreme Court, he urged the Senate to reject even eminently qualified nominees who would change the Court's "balance" in either a liberal or conservative direction. The Senate, he wrote, was "a ballast" needed to correct "the drift of the Supreme Court as represente d by a given appointment."

Well, here we go again. Professor Tribe met with 42 Senate Democrats in April to again plot confirmation strategy. With their majority windfall, Senator Leahy is again singing from the Tribe script but thi s time applying its radical tune to all judicial appointments.

Senate Democrats don't care that the Constitution gives the power to appoint judges to the president, not to them. And they don't care about any sort of "balance" in general. Rather, dressed in Professor Tribe's misleading rhetoric for public relations consumption only, they care about preserving a particular "balance" because they like the decisions that balance produces.

When they sang Professor Tribe's tune in 1987, Senat e Democrats sought to preserve a Supreme Court balance that had produced decision s on abortion and other subjects generally to their liking. Suiting up again as Professor Tribe's loyal confirmation soldiers, they want to preserve an overall balance produced by President Clinton's 374 judicial appointments. With 55 percent of all full-time judges Democrat appointees, it's no wonder they are no w playing the "balance" game.

As in 1987, it's a tough sell to claim that Presiden t Bush may not appoint qualified men and women who will interpret rather than mak e law. STATEMENT OF DIRECTOR BRIAN L. STAFFORD

Before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary
Hearing on the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, Utah
"Cooperation Among Federal, State, Local and Private Agencies to Address Public Safety Concerns"

May 31, 2001

Good afternoon, Mr. Chairman. I would like to thank you and the other members of the committee for providing a forum such as this on the 2002 Winter Olympics. On behalf of the United States Secret Service, I appreciate the opportunity to address our involvement with planning for the Winter Games, and to highlight the partnerships we have formed in the process of developing an operational security plan.

Coordinating security for an event of this scale is a monumental undertaking. We are expecting over 3,500 athletes, officials, and other participants; 9,000 media personnel, and an estimated 1.9 million spectators attending competitions at 10 different venues. The Games will proceed over a 17-day period, beginning with the opening ceremonies on February 8, 2002. The sheer number of people involved, coupled with the sprawling geographical area that must be secured, is awesome.

The responsibilities of the Secret Service also extend to providing a secure environment at the Olympic Village, the Main Media Center, and Rice-Eccles Oympic Stadium. In all, the Secret Service is responsible for the coordination of security in a theater of operation encompassing over 900 square miles, from venues in downtown Salt Lake City to more remote events in Provo and Ogden.

The goal of the Secret Service is to work with our partners in federal, state and local law enforcement, as well as with local officials in Utah, to provide a safe and secure environment for the participants and spectators, without diminishing the majesty and grandeur surrounding the Winter Olympics. As Americans, we remember the magical moments inspired by Mark Spitz, Mary Lou Retton, and Michael Johnson. But we also remember the tragedies brought by terrorists in Munich in 1972 and Atlanta in 1996.

The Secret Service's involvement with the 2002 Winter Olympics dates back to August of 1999, when the Winter Games were designated as a National Special Security Event (NSSE) by the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Treasury. As with other NSSE's, such as the NATO 50th Anniversary Summit, the 2000 Republican National Convention, the 2000 Democratic National Convention, and the 2001 Presidential Inauguration, the Secret Service was assigned the role of lead federal agency for the designing, planning and implementation of security at the 2002 Winter Olympics.

However, even before this designation was made in 1999, the Secret Service had initiated the process of joining with other federal, state and local agency representatives in security preparation for the Winter Games. This highlights one of the many advantages of our field office presence across the United States. As early as 1997, it was our personnel who were already in place in Salt Lake City and other regional field offices that began working with other agency representatives and local officials in the public safety planning process.

The Secret Service has also been an active, voting participant in a leadership-level committee dedicated to the development of an overall safety plan for the Winter Games. This committee, known as the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command (UOPSC), represents 20 federal, state and local agencies in the seven-county impacted area.

In addition to the design phase of an operational security plan, survey teams were formulated with Secret Service personnel who possess the skills and expertise to identify any vulnerabilities at the designated venues.

These teams, coordinated by full-time Secret Service Olympic planning staff members, partnered with local counterparts from the public safety community and the Salt Lake Organizing Committee (SLOC). The teams produced a blueprint for designing, planning and implementing operational security at each official venue.

Additionally, each venue has dedicated Secret Service representatives who work closely with the State-appointed "Venue Commander." All planning for the federal operational security component is done in concert with the Venue Commander to ensure that the federal plan is seamless in appearance with the local public safety elements at the venues.

Examples of the working relationships we have with our local partners can be found at each of the venues. At the Delta Center, where the figure skating competition will be held, the Secret Service is working closely with the Salt Lake City Police Department, who will be providing significant support and manpower at all of the venues in the downtown Salt Lake City area.

The Secret Service has also joined with other local agencies and officials, including the designated Venue Commander from the Utah Highway Patrol, in developing a security plan for the Olympic Village, where athletes, coaches and other officials will be residing during the Winter Games. At Snowbasin, one of the alpine venues, the Secret Service and the Weber County Sheriffs Department are developing an operational security plan for the 3,000-acre site. Securing a venue of this size and scope is a challenge for even the most experienced public safety planners, and demonstrates the necessity of inter-agency cooperation, and our reliance on these and other local law enforcement agencies.

Other examples of these collaborative efforts include our partnerships with the Summit County Sheriffs Department and the Provo Police Department.

Recognizing the need to establish an extensive operational presence throughout the 900 square miles encompassing the Winter Games, the Secret Service has established four different regional support facilities, with sites in Salt Lake City, Ogden, Heber City, and Park City.

Inside the secure perimeter of each venue, the Secret Service's Technical Security Division (TSD) is working closely with explosive specialists from other state and federal agencies. Their objective is to ensure that nothing has been placed inside the venue ahead of time that could cause death or serious physical injury, and to assist Olympic planners in the development of appropriate protocols for Hazardous Materials and other technical security issues related to major events. Once that task is completed, TSD specialists, in cooperation with the UOPSC Bomb Management Center, will be in place at each official venue to provide screening of packages and vehicles entering the venue.

In addition, our TSD specialists for the Winter Games have been working closely with other explosives experts to develop and implement the overall Explosives Ordnance Disposal (EOD) Plan for the Winter Games.

In yet another example of inter-agency cooperation, the Secret Service and the FBI have been working closely to ensure that both the operational security elements and the crisis response elements of the federal counterterrorism plan relative to EOD have been properly and effectively integrated in the EOD plan. The Secret Service has also actively participated with the Department of State and the Olympic Committee in the development of an accreditation protocol for the 2002 Winter Games.

As you know, Mr. Chairman, no plan can be properly implemented without a reliable communications network. The Secret Service has provided a full-time dedicated communications specialist to work in conjunction with other specialists from the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command who are required to have a sophisticated communications network capable of servicing all of our public safety partners. This critical project has received significant contributions from the Department of Defense, the FBI, a number of other federal law enforcement agencies, and roughly 45 state and local public safety departments in Utah.

When the 2002 Winter Olympics is examined from a counterterrorism perspective, the Secret Service should be viewed as the preventative component that the federal government has in place here in Utah.

Our counterterrorism efforts at each Olympic venue represent a multi-layered approach. First, perimeter security. Second, physical security barriers. Third, Explosive Ordinance Disposal sweeps and searches, and fourth, airspace security.

Perimeters are generally established at the outer boundary of each venue where vehicles and pedestrians might first enter, and at the point where access would be controlled by magnetometers. These perimeters are maintained by security posts that are strategically positioned to deter any possible intrusion. Physical security features, such as fencing and concrete barriers, are also employed in a counterterrorism plan, but in a manner that is as non-obtrusive as possible. These features are regrettably necessary to prevent unauthorized access to the venues, as well as to protect each venue from any sort of catastrophic event, such as a weapon of mass destruction delivered by a vehicle.

Before a venue can be considered ready for its scheduled event and activities, we must first determine that the site is free and clear of any pre-existing or "planted" explosives. This determination is made by first sealing off the site, followed by a methodical search conducted by qualified EOD technicians. The Secret Service employs these methods daily in its protective mission, and has developed the sweep and search plan for the official venues in the same manner.

Securing these venues and protecting them from terrorist threats cannot be complete without addressing the airspace above each venue. All venues have been pre-designated as being in a Temporary Flight Restricted Area (TFRA) and will be monitored by the U.S. Customs Service and the Federal Aviation Administration for potential incursions. This capability also includes an air-response component that is designed to investigate, identify, and re-direct any intruding aircraft. Personnel involved with these assets have received extensive operational training in an airborne environment.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, the Secret Service is proud of our collaborative effort with other federal, state and local law enforcement agencies in providing a safe and secure environment for the 2002 Winter Olympics. No single agency could accomplish such an undertaking on its own, and though the Secret Service is leading this effort, we simply could not perform this mission successfully without the critical assistance, support and expertise provided by both our federal partners, and the dedicated law enforcement community in Utah.

That concludes my prepared statement, and I would be happy to answer any questions that you or other members of the committee may have.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY'S OFFICE
DISTRICT OF UTAH

SENATE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE
FIELD HEARING
May 31, 2001

TESTIMONY

HONORABLE PAUL M. WARNER
UNITED STATES ATTORNEY
DISTRICT OF UTAH

Introduction.

As the United States Attorney for the District of Utah I am keenly aware of the public safety challenges the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games pose for the State of Utah and the nation. When I became United States Attorney in August 1998, I knew one of my first and most important responsibilities would be to make sure the Games received the federal support necessary to safeguard the event and protect the 2.2 million people living in my District. I also knew the strain the Games would place on law enforcement and public safety in my District would be great and that relations between federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, while strong, would be put to their toughest test.

Olympic Games are huge undertakings. They make tremendous demands on the communities chosen to host them. The potential effect of the Games on national security and on the country's prestige are major concerns for the federal government when Games are staged in the United States. As a result, whether or not it had much to do with bidding for or securing the Games for the host city, once the Games are awarded the national government is drawn into public safety and law enforcement roles that involve not only supporting and subsidizing local law enforcement in connection with the Games, but also providing expensive support for core federal responsibilities, some that are uniquely related to the Games and others that are simply greater because of the Games. The federal commitment of money, people, time and energy is extraordinary. The cost to the federal government is considerable and can neither be ignored nor displaced.

When I became the chief federal law enforcement officer in the District of Utah, I eagerly accepted my share of responsibility for ensuring that what is done to protect federal interests and to make the Games safe is done economically, responsibly, and within the recognized authority and jurisdiction of the agencies called upon to assist. It is essential to do things right and do them well with regard to the Games. I believe fiscal, legal and political accountability is critically important in the context of the Utah Games. Accountability is also important because of the impact the 2002 Games will have on future federal policy regarding similar events. What we are doing here should be a proving ground for finding the best way of handling federal involvement in the Olympic Games and other major national and international events in the future.

After examining the role the United States Attorney played in getting Atlanta ready for the 1996 Summer Olympics, I became convinced that my office should become actively engaged in helping law enforcement and public safety prepare for the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games. In the remaining portions of my testimony I briefly summarize the contributions of the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Utah to law enforcement preparations for the 2002 Games.

District LECC Olympic Initiative.

The District of Utah has a very good Law Enforcement Coordinating Committee or LECC. The District has an especially effective and well respected, and I add, overworked, LECC Coordinator in Melody Rydalch. Our LECC has functioned for many years as an effective way to coordinate state, local and federal law enforcement planning. I am proud of our LECC. It has been a vehicle for bringing together law enforcement leaders from all over Utah to consider issues of mutual importance and concern. I have used it as a conduit for providing training opportunities for local and state law enforcement officers and agents, enabling them to receive instruction alongside their federal counterparts. Together the members of our LECC and I have used the District LECC to vet important policy matters in order to encourage improvement and achieve uniformity in the use of law enforcement resources on common problems. For example, the District LECC has done important work on issues such as hate crime. In May 1999, the District LECC cosponsored a ground breaking Hate Crime Conference that has been a model for such conferences in other districts around the country. I know, Senator Hatch, that you are aware of this program and its success. The LECC has also taken critical law enforcement training and equipment to the Native American reservations in the State of Utah.

In November 1999, with the encouragement and support of the Department of Justice, I created the District LECC Olympic Initiative to help focus the District's and the Department's resources and energy on Olympic public safety. It made sense to me to use the LECC, an established and respected part of the law enforcement culture of the District, to help the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command and federal law enforcement agencies get the resources and assistance they need to prepare for the Games.

I have been an advocate within the Department of Justice for public safety and the Games. My role in the LECC and my independence from the Command make it possible for me to speak credibly and candidly about what is truly needed from the federal government in support of the Command.

The United States Attorney, through the District Olympic Initiative, has provided assistance to the Command and the federal law enforcement agencies involved in planning and operations related to the Games in the form of surplus equipment, travel assistance for local officers, training opportunities for local officers, and liaison with the Office of Special Events at the Department of Justice.

For the most part, law enforcement relations in Utah are very healthy. I am committed to doing all I can to ensure they are even better in the District of Utah when the Games are over than they are now. I see the 2002 Games as a unique opportunity to build on existing federal, state and local relationships. The Games provide an incentive to rethink, modernize and make improvements in our methods, techniques and doctrines that will benefit law enforcement and the community for years beyond the Games. The District LECC Olympic Initiative is an ideal way to help that happen.

I am also committed to getting the Command and the federal agencies with Olympic related responsibilities the funding and support, including military assistance [10 USC 2554], that is necessary and appropriate in connection with the Games. I am just as committed to seeing that what is provided is given according to principles designed to ensure accountability to the public for the expense. I am using the District LECC Olympic Initiative to accomplish that goal.

In November 1999, the amount of work that was being done in connection with the Olympic Initiative justified sending a senior Assistant United States Attorney to the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command to work on Olympic issues as a full-time LECC assignment. This was done with the encouragement and approval of the Department of Justice and the Executive Office for United States Attorneys. The arrangement has been a success for the District, the Department and the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command.

The senior Assistant United States Attorney who works with the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command represents the United States Attorney and the Department of Justice in local matters involving federal support to law enforcement and public safety in connection with the Games. He works closely with the Department of Justice Office of Special Events [Bob Chaney] to ensure that local and national concerns regarding such support are addressed promptly and appropriately.

He serves as one of the directors of the Command. His duties include supervision and management of communications support planning, intelligence planning and operations, legal affairs/criminal justice planning and operations, infrastructure protection planning, and providing advice and counsel to the Executive Director of the Command. He works side-by-side, and day-in-day-out with his state, local and federal counterparts in law enforcement and emergency services laying the ground work for delivering law enforcement and public safety services in connection with the Games in 2002.

Funding figures for the United States Attorney's Office include the cost of the salary and benefits for the senior Assistant United States Attorney as well as funding for a backfill position for that attorney, funding for a second LECC coordinator in the District who will help Ms. Rydalch handle growing Olympic related responsibilities as the Games approach, funding for travel, equipment, the production of materials that are part of the legal and criminal justice plan for the Games, including an Olympic Legal Affairs Handbook that standardizes prosecution guidelines and strategies and organizes criminal justice operations for the Games, and sponsorship of conferences on issues related to law enforcement planning and operations for the Games.

By the time the Games begin, the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Utah will have received approximately $849,000 for the District LECC Olympic Initiative; that is $6,000 in FY1998; $80,000 in FY1999; $149,000 in FY2000; $373,000 in FY2001; and an anticipated $241,000 in FY2002. [Analytical Perspectives, Budget of the United States Government, Fiscal Year 2002, pg. 435]. I believe any investment the Department of Justice and the United States Attorney's Office make in the Games will deliver great returns. If it reduces by a fraction what it might cost the United States Attorney's Office, the Department of Justice, or any other federal, state or local entity to deal with the inevitable during the Games, the money will have been well spent.

National Special Security Event and military assistance.

Presidential Decision Directive 62 (PDD-62) issued on May 22, 1998, in part addresses the national interest in special events like the Olympic Games as potential targets of political violence. Among other things, PDD-62 establishes a process whereby certain events, including the Olympic Games, can be considered National Special Security Events, or NSSEs, imposing on them as a result a special overlay of counter-terrorism and antiterrorism planning, preparation and operations intended to address the national concern.

In August 1999, the 2002 Games (the Olympic Winter Games not the Paralympic Winter Games) were made a National Special Security Event. The designation of the Utah Games as an NSSE came with a condition imposed by Attorney General Reno that in carrying out the federal counter-terrorism and antiterrorism responsibilities resulting from the designation, the lead federal agencies were to respect the roles and responsibilities of local authorities. The Attorney General's concern was identical to mine. I enthusiastically support the agencies with PDD-62 lead responsibilities for the Utah Games and I am committed to providing the tactical and forensic support and advice they require to make the planning and operations undertaken in connection with the Games successful.

The 2002 Olympic Winter Games are the first Olympic Games to be designated an NSSE. A number of other special events, i.e., the Papal visit to St. Louis, NATO 50, WTO in Seattle in 1999, IMF/WORLD BANK in 2000, OPSAIL in 2000, the Presidential Inauguration in 2001, have been designated NSSEs, but the 2002 Olympic Winter Games is the first major international sporting event to receive such attention.

There is no clear description within PDD-62 of how planning or operations should be conducted once an event is declared an NSSE. PDD-62 contemplates that the three lead federal agencies will independently create plans and assemble resources to treat the risks and address terrorist threats related to the event. The directive requires only that each lead agency coordinate its activities with the other lead agencies and identify and coordinate the measures and assets needed to perform their lead agency responsibilities.

The roles of the three lead federal agencies in counter-terrorism and antiterrorism planning and operations related to an NSSE bring a new regime of accountability, political and fiscal, that was not a feature of previous special events planning. It is important to note, however, that special event planning under PDD-62 has no budget. There is no budget earmarked for NSSEs generally. Great skill and careful diplomacy have been required to ensure the lead agencies will get what they need from the other departments and agencies within the national government to meet their obligations.

The success of NSSE planning and operations for the 2002 Games will not be an institutional success. It is not the NSSE concept or National Security Council involvement in NSSE planning that is leading the way, but creative individual efforts by those representing the lead federal agencies and, I like to think, the Department of Justice and the United States Attorney's Office, that will, in the end, make it all work. For the future, careful thought must be given to centralizing responsibility and authority for managing national policy regarding federal involvement in events like the Olympic Games, including security planning and operations. Authority and responsibility should be organized in the Executive branch in a way and at a level that will ensure the proper and comprehensive study of any bid, the commitment of resources and assets in appropriate measure and in rapid fashion when they are required, and demand and give full-spectrum (fiscal, legal and political) accountability for what the national government does in support of the event or United States participation in an event.

After the Atlanta Games, and before PDD-62, Congress passed legislation setting general criteria and creating a process for deciding when and how military resources can be used for security and safety assistance and for other forms of aid in connection with sporting events like the Olympic Games. Senator Hatch, I know you had a hand in making the legislation workable. Enacted in 1997, 10 USC 2554 brought a new dynamic to the process of supporting an Olympic Games with military public safety assistance. Accountability is critical in the fiscal and political environment that now exists regarding federal support hallmark special events such as the Olympic Games. 10 USC 2554 makes it more so when it is military support that is involved. I am committed to seeing to it that such assistance is properly accounted for in connection with the Games. As I will explain, one of the principal tasks the Assistant United States Attorney working with the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command has undertaken is doing what is necessary to help ensure such accountability.

10 USC 2554(a), provides a means for making military assets available to support public safety efforts without reimbursement in connection with an Olympic Games, but only if the Attorney General of the United States "certifies that such assistance is necessary to meet essential security and safety needs" in connection with the event. In practice, 2554(a) certification is made by the Attorney General upon review and recommendation of the FBI submitted to the Attorney General through a Joint Advisory Committee or JAC made up of representatives from the Special Events Management Unit, Domestic Terrorism/Counter terrorism Planning Section, National Security Division of the FBI, the Office of the Deputy Attorney General, the Department of Defense (DoD), and the USSS. Once the Attorney General certifies that military assistance is necessary to meet essential security and safety needs, the Secretary of Defense can authorize components of the DoD to provide the assistance without requiring reimbursement.

In order to make sure requests for federal public safety assistance don't unnecessarily duplicate what is already being provided in connection with a PDD-62 agency's NSSE responsibilities and to guarantee accountability for the acquisition, provision, deployment and use of federal law enforcement and public safety resources in connection with the 2002 Games, a local Federal Public Safety Resource Review Panel (Panel) comprising five members reflecting the make-up of the Joint Advisory Committee (DOJ, FBI, DoD, and Treasury (USSS)) and the lead PDD-62 agencies (FBI, USSS and FEMA), was formed in March 1999 to screen requests for federal public safety assistance and make recommendations regarding their approval.

The Panel reviews all requests for federal support or assistance in connection with the Games (1) made by a covered PDD-62 agency to another federal agency, including the military, for help in meeting the covered agency's counter-terrorism responsibilities in connection with the Games; (2) made by the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command to any federal agency for assistance in connection with the Games; or, (3) made by the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command for military assistance or support under 10 USC 2554.

The senior Assistant United States Attorney working Olympic issues for the United States Attorney's Office helped create the local review panel and represents the Department of Justice in all matters that come before it. His presence on the Panel helps ensure that the guiding principles of accountability set up to instruct federal agencies regarding how and what they should do to support law enforcement in connection with the Games are strictly observed.

Summary.

The Olympic Games are not law enforcement events. They must not be allowed to become law enforcement events either by misadventure or design.

The Olympic Games are more than overwhelming numbers (e.g., 133,000 people involved in the Games each day in February 2002, 1.6 million tickets, $885 for opening and closing ceremony tickets), they are more than the organizer's $1.3 billion budget, more than the millions it will cost to provide law enforcement and public safety services for the Games, more than TRAX, more than I-15, they are more than the inconvenience they will cause. They are, more than anything else, a celebration of human achievement and the human spirit. They are about the best in human experience. They are about excellence. They have the potential for touching each one of us in the most positive way imaginable. The Games can bring out the best in each of us. They can light the fire within.

They have already done that in the case of law enforcement and public safety in my District.

The role of law enforcement and public safety in connection with the Games is to help create an environment in the community and the nation during the Games that allows the people of Utah, as well as those who come to Utah to compete, officiate, support or run competitions, and those who visit to spectate or simply to be near the event, to have complete confidence that they will be safe and secure while they are in Utah for the Games. In other words, not to give a second thought to their safety or security during the Games.

The environment must make it possible for the men and women who come to Utah to compete in the finest facilities of their kind in the world, on the best snow in the world, and in one of the grandest natural settings anywhere, to have every chance to realize their Olympic dreams. Each competitor must be secure and safe so that no energy or attention is wasted on concern for his or her safety and well-being.

I am confident that such will be the case because our state, local and federal law enforcement and public safety agencies and authorities are working well together, quietly and competently to provide that environment.

Competitors work for years to bring their A games to the Olympics. The Utah Olympic Public Safety Command has worked hard and well for the last three years so it can bring the State's A game to making them safe. We approach the Games with the same confidence the best competitors will have when they come to Utah in 2002.

I am proud of what has been done so far.

I have the highest regard and praise for the job Commissioner Flowers and Dave Tubbs have done.

I extend my praise and regard to the people who work each day at the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command, at the Organizing Committee, and in the community to make it happen. They do their work quietly and without notice or reward other than the reward they get from the satisfaction of knowing they are involved in a unique and worthwhile event and are doing a terrific job.

As the United States Attorney I am pledged to continue to do all I can, all that is within my authority and jurisdiction to do, to make the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games safe and successful.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY'S OFFICE
DISTRICT OF UTAH

FIELD HEARING
May 31, 2001

TESTIMONY

HONORABLE PAUL M. WARNER
UNITED STATES ATTORNEY
DISTRICT OF UTAH

Introduction.

As the United States Attorney for the District of Utah I am keenly aware of the public safety challenges the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games pose for the State of Utah and the nation. When I became United States Attorney in August 1998, I knew one of my first and most important responsibilities would be to make sure the Games received the federal support necessary to safeguard the event and protect the 2.2 million people living in my District. I also knew the strain the Games would place on law enforcement and public safety in my District would be great and that relations between federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, while strong, would be put to their toughest test.

Olympic Games are huge undertakings. They make tremendous demands on the communities chosen to host them. The potential effect of the Games on national security and on the country's prestige are major concerns for the federal government when Games are staged in the United States. As a result, whether or not it had much to do with bidding for or securing the Games for the host city, once the Games are awarded the national government is drawn into public safety and law enforcement roles that involve not only supporting and subsidizing local law enforcement in connection with the Games, but also providing expensive support for core federal responsibilities, some that are uniquely related to the Games and others that are simply greater because of the Games. The federal commitment of money, people, time and energy is extraordinary. The cost to the federal government is considerable and can neither be ignored nor displaced.

When I became the chief federal law enforcement officer in the District of Utah, I eagerly accepted my share of responsibility for ensuring that what is done to protect federal interests and to make the Games safe is done economically, responsibly, and within the recognized authority and jurisdiction of the agencies called upon to assist. It is essential to do things right and do them well with regard to the Games. I believe fiscal, legal and political accountability is critically important in the context of the Utah Games. Accountability is also important because of the impact the 2002 Games will have on future federal policy regarding similar events. What we are doing here should be a proving ground for finding the best way of handling federal involvement in the Olympic Games and other major national and international events in the future.

After examining the role the United States Attorney played in getting Atlanta ready for the 1996 Summer Olympics, I became convinced that my office should become actively engaged in helping law enforcement and public safety prepare for the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games. In the remaining portions of my testimony I briefly summarize the contributions of the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Utah to law enforcement preparations for the 2002 Games.

District LECC Olympic Initiative.

The District of Utah has a very good Law Enforcement Coordinating Committee or LECC. The District has an especially effective and well respected, and I add, overworked, LECC Coordinator in Melody Rydalch. Our LECC has functioned for many years as an effective way to coordinate state, local and federal law enforcement planning. I am proud of our LECC. It has been a vehicle for bringing together law enforcement leaders from all over Utah to consider issues of mutual importance and concern. I have used it as a conduit for providing training opportunities for local and state law enforcement officers and agents, enabling them to receive instruction alongside their federal counterparts. Together the members of our LECC and I have used the District LECC to vet important policy matters in order to encourage improvement and achieve uniformity in the use of law enforcement resources on common problems. For example, the District LECC has done important work on issues such as hate crime. In May 1999, the District LECC cosponsored a ground breaking Hate Crime Conference that has been a model for such conferences in other districts around the country. I know, Senator Hatch, that you are aware of this program and its success. The LECC has also taken critical law enforcement training and equipment to the Native American reservations in the State of Utah.

In November 1999, with the encouragement and support of the Department of Justice, I created the District LECC Olympic Initiative to help focus the District's and the Department's resources and energy on Olympic public safety. It made sense to me to use the LECC, an established and respected part of the law enforcement culture of the District, to help the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command and federal law enforcement agencies get the resources and assistance they need to prepare for the Games.

I have been an advocate within the Department of Justice for public safety and the Games. My role in the LECC and my independence from the Command make it possible for me to speak credibly and candidly about what is truly needed from the federal government in support of the Command.

The United States Attorney, through the District Olympic Initiative, has provided assistance to the Command and the federal law enforcement agencies involved in planning and operations related to the Games in the form of surplus equipment, travel assistance for local officers, training opportunities for local officers, and liaison with the Office of Special Events at the Department of Justice.

For the most part, law enforcement relations in Utah are very healthy. I am committed to doing all I can to ensure they are even better in the District of Utah when the Games are over than they are now. I see the 2002 Games as a unique opportunity to build on existing federal, state and local relationships. The Games provide an incentive to rethink, modernize and make improvements in our methods, techniques and doctrines that will benefit law enforcement and the community for years beyond the Games. The District LECC Olympic Initiative is an ideal way to help that happen.

I am also committed to getting the Command and the federal agencies with Olympic related responsibilities the funding and support, including military assistance [10 USC 2554], that is necessary and appropriate in connection with the Games. I am just as committed to seeing that what is provided is given according to principles designed to ensure accountability to the public for the expense. I am using the District LECC Olympic Initiative to accomplish that goal.

In November 1999, the amount of work that was being done in connection with the Olympic Initiative justified sending a senior Assistant United States Attorney to the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command to work on Olympic issues as a full-time LECC assignment. This was done with the encouragement and approval of the Department of Justice and the Executive Office for United States Attorneys. The arrangement has been a success for the District, the Department and the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command.

The senior Assistant United States Attorney who works with the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command represents the United States Attorney and the Department of Justice in local matters involving federal support to law enforcement and public safety in connection with the Games. He works closely with the Department of Justice Office of Special Events [Bob Chaney] to ensure that local and national concerns regarding such support are addressed promptly and appropriately.

He serves as one of the directors of the Command. His duties include supervision and management of communications support planning, intelligence planning and operations, legal affairs/criminal justice planning and operations, infrastructure protection planning, and providing advice and counsel to the Executive Director of the Command. He works side-by-side, and day-in-day-out with his state, local and federal counterparts in law enforcement and emergency services laying the ground work for delivering law enforcement and public safety services in connection with the Games in 2002.

Funding figures for the United States Attorney's Office include the cost of the salary and benefits for the senior Assistant United States Attorney as well as funding for a backfill position for that attorney, funding for a second LECC coordinator in the District who will help Ms. Rydalch handle growing Olympic related responsibilities as the Games approach, funding for travel, equipment, the production of materials that are part of the legal and criminal justice plan for the Games, including an Olympic Legal Affairs Handbook that standardizes prosecution guidelines and strategies and organizes criminal justice operations for the Games, and sponsorship of conferences on issues related to law enforcement planning and operations for the Games.

By the time the Games begin, the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Utah will have received approximately $849,000 for the District LECC Olympic Initiative; that is $6,000 in FY1998; $80,000 in FY1999; $149,000 in FY2000; $373,000 in FY2001; and an anticipated $241,000 in FY2002. [Analytical Perspectives, Budget of the United States Government, Fiscal Year 2002, pg. 435]. I believe any investment the Department of Justice and the United States Attorney's Office make in the Games will deliver great returns. If it reduces by a fraction what it might cost the United States Attorney's Office, the Department of Justice, or any other federal, state or local entity to deal with the inevitable during the Games, the money will have been well spent.

National Special Security Event and military assistance.

Presidential Decision Directive 62 (PDD-62) issued on May 22, 1998, in part addresses the national interest in special events like the Olympic Games as potential targets of political violence. Among other things, PDD-62 establishes a process whereby certain events, including the Olympic Games, can be considered National Special Security Events, or NSSEs, imposing on them as a result a special overlay of counter-terrorism and antiterrorism planning, preparation and operations intended to address the national concern.

After the Atlanta Games, and before PDD-62, Congress passed legislation setting general criteria and creating a process for deciding when and how military resources can be used for security and safety assistance and for other forms of aid in connection with sporting events like the Olympic Games. Senator Hatch, I know you had a hand in making the legislation workable. As I will explain, one of the principal tasks the Assistant United States Attorney working with the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command has undertaken is doing what is necessary to help ensure such accountability.

10 USC 2554(a), provides a means for making military assets available to support public safety efforts without reimbursement in connection with an Olympic Games, but only if the Attorney General of the United States "certifies that such assistance is necessary to meet essential security and safety needs" in connection with the event. In practice, 2554(a) certification is made by the Attorney General upon review and recommendation of the FBI submitted to the Attorney General through a Joint Advisory Committee or JAC made up of representatives from the Special Events Management Unit, Domestic Terrorism/Counter terrorism Planning Section, National Security Division of the FBI, the Office of the Deputy Attorney General, the Department of Defense (DoD), and the USSS. Once the Attorney General certifies that military assistance is necessary to meet essential security and safety needs, the Secretary of Defense can authorize components of the DoD to provide the assistance without requiring reimbursement.

In order to make sure requests for federal public safety assistance don't unnecessarily duplicate what is already being provided in connection with a PDD-62 agency's NSSE responsibilities and to guarantee accountability for the acquisition, provision, deployment and use of federal law enforcement and public safety resources in connection with the 2002 Games, a local Federal Public Safety Resource Review Panel (Panel) comprising five members reflecting the make-up of the Joint Advisory Committee (DOJ, FBI, DoD, and Treasury (USSS)) and the lead PDD-62 agencies (FBI, USSS and FEMA), was formed in March 1999 to screen requests for federal public safety assistance and make recommendations regarding their approval.

The Panel reviews all requests for federal support or assistance in connection with the Games (1) made by a covered PDD-62 agency to another federal agency, including the military, for help in meeting the covered agency's counter-terrorism responsibilities in connection with the Games; (2) made by the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command to any federal agency for assistance in connection with the Games; or, (3) made by the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command for military assistance or support under 10 USC 2554.

The senior Assistant United States Attorney working Olympic issues for the United States Attorney's Office helped create the local review panel and represents the Department of Justice in all matters that come before it. His presence on the Panel helps ensure that the guiding principles of accountability set up to instruct federal agencies regarding how and what they should do to support law enforcement in connection with the Games are strictly observed.

Summary.

The Olympic Games are not law enforcement events. They must not be allowed to become law enforcement events either by misadventure or design.

The Olympic Games are more than overwhelming numbers (e.g., 133,000 people involved in the Games each day in February 2002, 1.6 million tickets, $885 for opening and closing ceremony tickets), they are more than the organizer's $1.3 billion budget, more than the millions it will cost to provide law enforcement and public safety services for the Games, more than TRAX, more than I-15, they are more than the inconvenience they will cause. They are, more than anything else, a celebration of human achievement and the human spirit. They are about the best in human experience. They are about excellence. They have the potential for touching each one of us in the most positive way imaginable. The Games can bring out the best in each of us. They can light the fire within.

They have already done that in the case of law enforcement and public safety in my District.

The role of law enforcement and public safety in connection with the Games is to help create an environment in the community and the nation during the Games that allows the people of Utah, as well as those who come to Utah to compete, officiate, support or run competitions, and those who visit to spectate or simply to be near the event, to have complete confidence that they will be safe and secure while they are in Utah for the Games. In other words, not to give a second thought to their safety or security during the Games.

The environment must make it possible for the men and women who come to Utah to compete in the finest facilities of their kind in the world, on the best snow in the world, and in one of the grandest natural settings anywhere, to have every chance to realize their Olympic dreams. Each competitor must be secure and safe so that no energy or attention is wasted on concern for his or her safety and well-being.

I am confident that such will be the case because our state, local and federal law enforcement and public safety agencies and authorities are working well together, quietly and competently to provide that environment.

Competitors work for years to bring their A games to the Olympics. The Utah Olympic Public Safety Command has worked hard and well for the last three years so it can bring the State's A game to making them safe. We approach the Games with the same confidence the best competitors will have when they come to Utah in 2002.

I am proud of what has been done so far.

I have the highest regard and praise for the job Commissioner Flowers and Dave Tubbs have done.

I extend my praise and regard to the people who work each day at the Utah Olympic Public Safety Command, at the Organizing Committee, and in the community to make it happen. They do their work quietly and without notice or reward other than the reward they get from the satisfaction of knowing they are involved in a unique and worthwhile event and are doing a terrific job.

As the United States Attorney I am pledged to continue to do all I can, all that is within my authority and jurisdiction to do, to make the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games safe and successful.

A New Environmentalism for the 21st Century

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush will highlight his commitment to a new environmentalism for the 21st century in a visit to Florida's Everglades National Park where he will outline his agenda to help the federal government act as a better partner with states and local communities in the shared goal of responsible environmental stewardship.

- The President's FY02 budget will provide more than $219 million for restoring the Everglades. The President will also praise the unique partnership between the State of Florida, local communities and the Federal government to restore the Everglades as a model for how Federal conservation and environmental protection efforts can more effectively partner with states and local communities to produce results.

- The President will highlight his National Parks Legacy Project to eliminate the maintenance backlog in the National Parks over the next five years, including projects in the Everglades that have a direct effect on the environmental health of the Park ecosystem.

The President's Budget: A Commitment to Protecting the Everglades:

- President Bush's budget increases funding for Everglades restoration in the Department of the Interior and the Army Corps of Engineers by $58 million over FY01 funding levels to $219 million for FY02.

- Part of this funding will initiate the 35-year, $8 billion Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), led by the Army Corps of Engineers. The CERP is the most comprehensive and ambitious ecosystem restoration project ever undertaken in the United States. It includes more than 65 projects, and the costs of the restoration and future operating expenses will be shared 50-50 by the Federal government and non-Federal interests, including the State of Florida.

- Over the long-term, the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan will restore approximately 2.4 million acres of the Everglades ecosystem. The Everglades restoration project has received broad, bipartisan support from Congress, the State of Florida, tribal organizations, environmental groups, local communities, the agricultural community and other key stakeholders.

- The CERP will also help to ensure that South Florida has a reliable supply of fresh water for years to come. When fully implemented, it will provide the region with an additional 1.7 billion gallons of fresh water per day – ensuring an expanded water supply to meet the growing needs of South Florida communities and farms.

The President's National Parks Legacy Project and Everglades National Park:

- On May 30, at Sequoia National Park, President Bush announced his National Parks Legacy Project to ensure that our National Parks are properly maintained and enhanced. Over the next five years, the President's National Parks Legacy Project will secure funding to eliminate the existing $4.9 billion maintenance backlog in the National Parks. The President's FY02 budget provides $439.6 million for non-road maintenance projects – an increase of almost 30% from FY01.

- Included among the National Parks Legacy Project initiatives funded by the President's budget is more than $4 million to replace and improve a wastewater treatment plant and associated systems in the southern part of Everglades National Park.

- The existing treatment plant has repeatedly failed to comply with Federal and Florida Department of Environmental regulations for sewage effluent discharge and jeopardizes the health of one of the largest mangrove ecosystems in the Western Hemisphere. President Bush's budget provides new funding to allow this project to move forward and eliminate the discharge of polluted water into the Everglades.

- The President's Budget also supports the Natural Resource Challenge to improve management of the natural resources within the National Parks. This will enhance conservation efforts by focusing more resources on understanding complex ecosystems and the impact of human activities.

- The President has called for fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund at $900 million for FY02 – an increase of $359.7 million over FY01 funding levels. Half of the Land and Water Conservation Fund will go toward grants to support state and local conservation and outdoor recreation efforts, including needed land acquisition projects in the Everglades ecosystem and nationwide.

A New Environmentalism for the 21st Century

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush will highlight his commitment to a new environmentalism for the 21st century in a visit to Florida's Everglades National Park where he will outline his agenda to help the federal government act as a better partner with states and local communities in the shared goal of responsible environmental stewardship.

- The President's FY02 budget will provide more than $219 million for restoring the Everglades. The President will also praise the unique partnership between the State of Florida, local communities and the Federal government to restore the Everglades as a model for how Federal conservation and environmental protection efforts can more effectively partner with states and local communities to produce results.

- The President will highlight his National Parks Legacy Project to eliminate the maintenance backlog in the National Parks over the next five years, including projects in the Everglades that have a direct effect on the environmental health of the Park ecosystem.

The President's Budget: A Commitment to Protecting the Everglades:

- President Bush's budget increases funding for Everglades restoration in the Department of the Interior and the Army Corps of Engineers by $58 million over FY01 funding levels to $219 million for FY02.

- Part of this funding will initiate the 35-year, $8 billion Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), led by the Army Corps of Engineers. The CERP is the most comprehensive and ambitious ecosystem restoration project ever undertaken in the United States. It includes more than 65 projects, and the costs of the restoration and future operating expenses will be shared 50-50 by the Federal government and non-Federal interests, including the State of Florida.

- Over the long-term, the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan will restore approximately 2.4 million acres of the Everglades ecosystem. The Everglades restoration project has received broad, bipartisan support from Congress, the State of Florida, tribal organizations, environmental groups, local communities, the agricultural community and other key stakeholders.

- The CERP will also help to ensure that South Florida has a reliable supply of fresh water for years to come. When fully implemented, it will provide the region with an additional 1.7 billion gallons of fresh water per day – ensuring an expanded water supply to meet the growing needs of South Florida communities and farms.

The President's National Parks Legacy Project and Everglades National Park:

- On May 30, at Sequoia National Park, President Bush announced his National Parks Legacy Project to ensure that our National Parks are properly maintained and enhanced. Over the next five years, the President's National Parks Legacy Project will secure funding to eliminate the existing $4.9 billion maintenance backlog in the National Parks. The President's FY02 budget provides $439.6 million for non-road maintenance projects – an increase of almost 30% from FY01.

- Included among the National Parks Legacy Project initiatives funded by the President's budget is more than $4 million to replace and improve a wastewater treatment plant and associated systems in the southern part of Everglades National Park.

- The existing treatment plant has repeatedly failed to comply with Federal and Florida Department of Environmental regulations for sewage effluent discharge and jeopardizes the health of one of the largest mangrove ecosystems in the Western Hemisphere. President Bush's budget provides new funding to allow this project to move forward and eliminate the discharge of polluted water into the Everglades.

- The President's Budget also supports the Natural Resource Challenge to improve management of the natural resources within the National Parks. This will enhance conservation efforts by focusing more resources on understanding complex ecosystems and the impact of human activities.

- The President has called for fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund at $900 million for FY02 – an increase of $359.7 million over FY01 funding levels. Half of the Land and Water Conservation Fund will go toward grants to support state and local conservation and outdoor recreation efforts, including needed land acquisition projects in the Everglades ecosystem and nationwide.

A New Environmentalism for the 21st Century

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush will highlight his commitment to a new environmentalism for the 21st century in a visit to Florida's Everglades National Park where he will outline his agenda to help the federal government act as a better partner with states and local communities in the shared goal of responsible environmental stewardship.

- The President's FY02 budget will provide more than $219 million for restoring the Everglades. The President will also praise the unique partnership between the State of Florida, local communities and the Federal government to restore the Everglades as a model for how Federal conservation and environmental protection efforts can more effectively partner with states and local communities to produce results.

- The President will highlight his National Parks Legacy Project to eliminate the maintenance backlog in the National Parks over the next five years, including projects in the Everglades that have a direct effect on the environmental health of the Park ecosystem.

The President's Budget: A Commitment to Protecting the Everglades:

- President Bush's budget increases funding for Everglades restoration in the Department of the Interior and the Army Corps of Engineers by $58 million over FY01 funding levels to $219 million for FY02.

- Part of this funding will initiate the 35-year, $8 billion Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), led by the Army Corps of Engineers. The CERP is the most comprehensive and ambitious ecosystem restoration project ever undertaken in the United States. It includes more than 65 projects, and the costs of the restoration and future operating expenses will be shared 50-50 by the Federal government and non-Federal interests, including the State of Florida.

- Over the long-term, the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan will restore approximately 2.4 million acres of the Everglades ecosystem. The Everglades restoration project has received broad, bipartisan support from Congress, the State of Florida, tribal organizations, environmental groups, local communities, the agricultural community and other key stakeholders.

- The CERP will also help to ensure that South Florida has a reliable supply of fresh water for years to come. When fully implemented, it will provide the region with an additional 1.7 billion gallons of fresh water per day – ensuring an expanded water supply to meet the growing needs of South Florida communities and farms.

The President's National Parks Legacy Project and Everglades National Park:

- On May 30, at Sequoia National Park, President Bush announced his National Parks Legacy Project to ensure that our National Parks are properly maintained and enhanced. Over the next five years, the President's National Parks Legacy Project will secure funding to eliminate the existing $4.9 billion maintenance backlog in the National Parks. The President's FY02 budget provides $439.6 million for non-road maintenance projects – an increase of almost 30% from FY01.

- Included among the National Parks Legacy Project initiatives funded by the President's budget is more than $4 million to replace and improve a wastewater treatment plant and associated systems in the southern part of Everglades National Park.

- The existing treatment plant has repeatedly failed to comply with Federal and Florida Department of Environmental regulations for sewage effluent discharge and jeopardizes the health of one of the largest mangrove ecosystems in the Western Hemisphere. President Bush's budget provides new funding to allow this project to move forward and eliminate the discharge of polluted water into the Everglades.

- The President's Budget also supports the Natural Resource Challenge to improve management of the natural resources within the National Parks. This will enhance conservation efforts by focusing more resources on understanding complex ecosystems and the impact of human activities.

- The President has called for fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund at $900 million for FY02 – an increase of $359.7 million over FY01 funding levels. Half of the Land and Water Conservation Fund will go toward grants to support state and local conservation and outdoor recreation efforts, including needed land acquisition projects in the Everglades ecosystem and nationwide.

A New Environmentalism for the 21st Century

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush will highlight his commitment to a new environmentalism for the 21st century in a visit to Florida's Everglades National Park where he will outline his agenda to help the federal government act as a better partner with states and local communities in the shared goal of responsible environmental stewardship.

- The President's FY02 budget will provide more than $219 million for restoring the Everglades. The President will also praise the unique partnership between the State of Florida, local communities and the Federal government to restore the Everglades as a model for how Federal conservation and environmental protection efforts can more effectively partner with states and local communities to produce results.

- The President will highlight his National Parks Legacy Project to eliminate the maintenance backlog in the National Parks over the next five years, including projects in the Everglades that have a direct effect on the environmental health of the Park ecosystem.

The President's Budget: A Commitment to Protecting the Everglades:

- President Bush's budget increases funding for Everglades restoration in the Department of the Interior and the Army Corps of Engineers by $58 million over FY01 funding levels to $219 million for FY02.

- Part of this funding will initiate the 35-year, $8 billion Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), led by the Army Corps of Engineers. The CERP is the most comprehensive and ambitious ecosystem restoration project ever undertaken in the United States. It includes more than 65 projects, and the costs of the restoration and future operating expenses will be shared 50-50 by the Federal government and non-Federal interests, including the State of Florida.

- Over the long-term, the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan will restore approximately 2.4 million acres of the Everglades ecosystem. The Everglades restoration project has received broad, bipartisan support from Congress, the State of Florida, tribal organizations, environmental groups, local communities, the agricultural community and other key stakeholders.

- The CERP will also help to ensure that South Florida has a reliable supply of fresh water for years to come. When fully implemented, it will provide the region with an additional 1.7 billion gallons of fresh water per day – ensuring an expanded water supply to meet the growing needs of South Florida communities and farms.

The President's National Parks Legacy Project and Everglades National Park:

- On May 30, at Sequoia National Park, President Bush announced his National Parks Legacy Project to ensure that our National Parks are properly maintained and enhanced. Over the next five years, the President's National Parks Legacy Project will secure funding to eliminate the existing $4.9 billion maintenance backlog in the National Parks. The President's FY02 budget provides $439.6 million for non-road maintenance projects – an increase of almost 30% from FY01.

- Included among the National Parks Legacy Project initiatives funded by the President's budget is more than $4 million to replace and improve a wastewater treatment plant and associated systems in the southern part of Everglades National Park.

- The existing treatment plant has repeatedly failed to comply with Federal and Florida Department of Environmental regulations for sewage effluent discharge and jeopardizes the health of one of the largest mangrove ecosystems in the Western Hemisphere. President Bush's budget provides new funding to allow this project to move forward and eliminate the discharge of polluted water into the Everglades.

- The President's Budget also supports the Natural Resource Challenge to improve management of the natural resources within the National Parks. This will enhance conservation efforts by focusing more resources on understanding complex ecosystems and the impact of human activities.

- The President has called for fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund at $900 million for FY02 – an increase of $359.7 million over FY01 funding levels. Half of the Land and Water Conservation Fund will go toward grants to support state and local conservation and outdoor recreation efforts, including needed land acquisition projects in the Everglades ecosystem and nationwide.

A New Environmentalism for the 21st Century

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush will highlight his commitment to a new environmentalism for the 21st century in a visit to Florida's Everglades National Park where he will outline his agenda to help the federal government act as a better partner with states and local communities in the shared goal of responsible environmental stewardship.

- The President's FY02 budget will provide more than $219 million for restoring the Everglades. The President will also praise the unique partnership between the State of Florida, local communities and the Federal government to restore the Everglades as a model for how Federal conservation and environmental protection efforts can more effectively partner with states and local communities to produce results.

- The President will highlight his National Parks Legacy Project to eliminate the maintenance backlog in the National Parks over the next five years, including projects in the Everglades that have a direct effect on the environmental health of the Park ecosystem.

The President's Budget: A Commitment to Protecting the Everglades:

- President Bush's budget increases funding for Everglades restoration in the Department of the Interior and the Army Corps of Engineers by $58 million over FY01 funding levels to $219 million for FY02.

- Part of this funding will initiate the 35-year, $8 billion Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), led by the Army Corps of Engineers. The CERP is the most comprehensive and ambitious ecosystem restoration project ever undertaken in the United States. It includes more than 65 projects, and the costs of the restoration and future operating expenses will be shared 50-50 by the Federal government and non-Federal interests, including the State of Florida.

- Over the long-term, the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan will restore approximately 2.4 million acres of the Everglades ecosystem. The Everglades restoration project has received broad, bipartisan support from Congress, the State of Florida, tribal organizations, environmental groups, local communities, the agricultural community and other key stakeholders.

- The CERP will also help to ensure that South Florida has a reliable supply of fresh water for years to come. When fully implemented, it will provide the region with an additional 1.7 billion gallons of fresh water per day – ensuring an expanded water supply to meet the growing needs of South Florida communities and farms.

The President's National Parks Legacy Project and Everglades National Park:

- On May 30, at Sequoia National Park, President Bush announced his National Parks Legacy Project to ensure that our National Parks are properly maintained and enhanced. Over the next five years, the President's National Parks Legacy Project will secure funding to eliminate the existing $4.9 billion maintenance backlog in the National Parks. The President's FY02 budget provides $439.6 million for non-road maintenance projects – an increase of almost 30% from FY01.

- Included among the National Parks Legacy Project initiatives funded by the President's budget is more than $4 million to replace and improve a wastewater treatment plant and associated systems in the southern part of Everglades National Park.

- The existing treatment plant has repeatedly failed to comply with Federal and Florida Department of Environmental regulations for sewage effluent discharge and jeopardizes the health of one of the largest mangrove ecosystems in the Western Hemisphere. President Bush's budget provides new funding to allow this project to move forward and eliminate the discharge of polluted water into the Everglades.

- The President's Budget also supports the Natural Resource Challenge to improve management of the natural resources within the National Parks. This will enhance conservation efforts by focusing more resources on understanding complex ecosystems and the impact of human activities.

- The President has called for fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund at $900 million for FY02 – an increase of $359.7 million over FY01 funding levels. Half of the Land and Water Conservation Fund will go toward grants to support state and local conservation and outdoor recreation efforts, including needed land acquisition projects in the Everglades ecosystem and nationwide.

A New Environmentalism for the 21st Century

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush will highlight his commitment to a new environmentalism for the 21st century in a visit to Florida's Everglades National Park where he will outline his agenda to help the federal government act as a better partner with states and local communities in the shared goal of responsible environmental stewardship.

- The President's FY02 budget will provide more than $219 million for restoring the Everglades. The President will also praise the unique partnership between the State of Florida, local communities and the Federal government to restore the Everglades as a model for how Federal conservation and environmental protection efforts can more effectively partner with states and local communities to produce results.

- The President will highlight his National Parks Legacy Project to eliminate the maintenance backlog in the National Parks over the next five years, including projects in the Everglades that have a direct effect on the environmental health of the Park ecosystem.

The President's Budget: A Commitment to Protecting the Everglades:

- President Bush's budget increases funding for Everglades restoration in the Department of the Interior and the Army Corps of Engineers by $58 million over FY01 funding levels to $219 million for FY02.

- Part of this funding will initiate the 35-year, $8 billion Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), led by the Army Corps of Engineers. The CERP is the most comprehensive and ambitious ecosystem restoration project ever undertaken in the United States. It includes more than 65 projects, and the costs of the restoration and future operating expenses will be shared 50-50 by the Federal government and non-Federal interests, including the State of Florida.

- Over the long-term, the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan will restore approximately 2.4 million acres of the Everglades ecosystem. The Everglades restoration project has received broad, bipartisan support from Congress, the State of Florida, tribal organizations, environmental groups, local communities, the agricultural community and other key stakeholders.

- The CERP will also help to ensure that South Florida has a reliable supply of fresh water for years to come. When fully implemented, it will provide the region with an additional 1.7 billion gallons of fresh water per day – ensuring an expanded water supply to meet the growing needs of South Florida communities and farms.

The President's National Parks Legacy Project and Everglades National Park:

- On May 30, at Sequoia National Park, President Bush announced his National Parks Legacy Project to ensure that our National Parks are properly maintained and enhanced. Over the next five years, the President's National Parks Legacy Project will secure funding to eliminate the existing $4.9 billion maintenance backlog in the National Parks. The President's FY02 budget provides $439.6 million for non-road maintenance projects – an increase of almost 30% from FY01.

- Included among the National Parks Legacy Project initiatives funded by the President's budget is more than $4 million to replace and improve a wastewater treatment plant and associated systems in the southern part of Everglades National Park.

- The existing treatment plant has repeatedly failed to comply with Federal and Florida Department of Environmental regulations for sewage effluent discharge and jeopardizes the health of one of the largest mangrove ecosystems in the Western Hemisphere. President Bush's budget provides new funding to allow this project to move forward and eliminate the discharge of polluted water into the Everglades.

- The President's Budget also supports the Natural Resource Challenge to improve management of the natural resources within the National Parks. This will enhance conservation efforts by focusing more resources on understanding complex ecosystems and the impact of human activities.

- The President has called for fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund at $900 million for FY02 – an increase of $359.7 million over FY01 funding levels. Half of the Land and Water Conservation Fund will go toward grants to support state and local conservation and outdoor recreation efforts, including needed land acquisition projects in the Everglades ecosystem and nationwide.

ABC,s &This Week,8 06/03/01:

Sen. HATCH: (But I'll tell you what I'm concerned about, as I've always been concerned about it, is what's going to happen to these nominees by the president? The president has a right to nominate not only judges but the top people in his administration, and he has a right to have those confirmed as quickly as possible. And I've got to tell you, I believe there is a real concern on our side that there is going to be an automatic slowdown in all of these matters, and that's going to be devastating to our country.

COKIE ROBERTS: Well, Senator Schumer, you are the incoming chairman of the subcommittee on courts. So you will be there to--to deal with that. And let me quote you from Senator Hatch a newspaper this week saying, "I think they'll treat President Bush's nominees the way I treated President Clinton's. I treated them well." Is that--first of all, do you agree with that? And secondly, is that the way you're going to treat them?

Sen. SCHUMER: Well, yes. I don't think there is any intent to not nominate, to use dilatory tactics. All we want to do is carefully examine the nominee's records. Since the ABA has been removed from the White House, there is virtually no vetting process outside the White House, and we feel we have to do that. But once the vetting process goes forward, we will move forward with the nominees. We do not want to slow them down.

ROBERTS: Now, what does--what does that mean, though? Can you tell us exactly what that means? That means you're going to bring the American Bar Association into the process at the beginning? How are you going to use them?

Sen. SCHUMER: Once the administration informs us of a nominee, we will ask the Bar Association to thoroughly review each candidate, and we will not bring them for a hearing until that review occurs. It should take three or four weeks, but three or four weeks when you're making lifetime appointments, which federal judges are, is not too much to ask.

ROBERTS: Is that--does that sit well with you?

Sen. HATCH: Well, it's a practical matter. I don't think that the American Bar Association, when there are dozens of bar associations in this country, has been elected to anything to vet judges. On the other hand, as a practical matter, we were going to have the--the Bar Association, they would do their vetting no matter what anyway, and then we always said senators could give whatever weight they wanted to to that. But I just didn't want them as part of the formal process and neither did the president. I think they shouldn't be anymore than the Hispanic Bar Association should be. But we pay attention to what the ABA says and there's no question that--that that's important. We have now over 100 vacancies in the federal judiciary. When you have around 63, that's what President Clinton said was a full judiciary, that's pretty close to being accurate because there is a lag in there where--where you--you can have some vacancies. But 100, that's going to be a tough thing.

Now I'm--I believe Chuck and--and hopefully all the other Democrats on the committee will do what is necessary to hold the hearings and bring that down to where we get it down to, you know, 30 or 40. We had 41 vacancies--41 holdovers left at the end of the Clinton administration, and some of those were put up in the last few weeks just to look good because they knew we didn't have time to process them. But we processed 377 judges for Bill Clinton. That's five less than the all-time champion confirming president, that was Ronald Reagan. And the Democrats would have had three more than Reagan had it not been for Democrat objections.

ROBERTS: Well, Senator Schumer, without getting into all the--the numbers, you're pledging, though, that you will not delay these judges?

Sen. SCHUMER: There is no attempt to delay.

ROBERTS: OK.

Sen. SCHUMER: There is simply an attempt to get all the information out before we have to vote.

CBS,s &Face the Nation,8 06/03/01:

BOB SCHIEFFER: Senator Leahy, let me turn to you now. You're heading up Judiciary, which is sure going to be one of the hot spots up there. The administration is already talking about that your committee, now that you're in charge, will try to bottle up its nominees. What do you see your role as chairman of the Judiciary Committee to be? Is it to shape the Judiciary? Is it to stop the president from putting more conservatives on the bench? Just where do you see your--your main job to be?

Senator PATRICK LEAHY (Democrat, Vermont): Well, I think my main job is to uphold the Constitution, especially the advise and consent of the Constitution. I'm not trying to appoint judges. That's a--that's a duty of the president of the United States, whoever he might be. But the advise and consent rule has been there from the--the time--the beginning of this country and put for a very specific reason, especially when it comes to lifetime appointments to the Judiciary. It's there so that you don't have the federal judiciary lurch either to the right or to the left, ideologically and that you have an independent, highly professional federal judiciary.

Remember, the founders looked at this very carefully. If you are going to give somebody a lifetime position, they wanted to make sure there were some check and balance, so that the president wouldn't stack a court--ideologically, stack a court either way. And they put the Senate in the role of advising and consent. I think in--in the 25 years I've been in the Senate, I can't think of any greater responsibility than to make sure that that--that that advise and consent rule is followed because these judges are going to be there long after I'm gone, long after President Bush is gone. And we have to do that.

But you know this idea that there's going to be some kind of confrontation for the sake of confrontation is really foolish. There have--we've been there six months now. They have not had--the Republicans have not had any confirmations of judges or hearings. I intend, as soon as we're organized, to start having those. And I'm not--I--I will work with the White House. I've talked to them about that. But we have a lot of other things on our plate besides just judges.

CNN,s &Late Edition,8 06/03/01:

STEVE ROBERTS [CNN COMMENTATOR, CONTRIBUTING EDITOR FOR U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT]: (But there are two areas to watch. I was talking to Orrin Hatch about this, and he mentioned this when you talked to her earlier. Already we see judicial nominations that are not being made because if they're perceived as too ideological they won't get through.

WOLF BLITZER [HOST]: And Susan, I want to just button this up, judicial nominees. That obviously - and Steve suggested it - they're going to have to be careful, sending over moderates. If there is an opening, if Judge Rehnquist, for instance, the chief justice, if he were to retire, Antonin Scalia becoming the next chief justice, is that out of the question now?

SUSAN PAGE [CNN COMMENTATOR, WASHINGTON BUREAU CHIEF FOR USA TODAY]: I think that if the first Supreme Court justice position to be filled, it would be filled by one of two people. One would be an Hispanic judge, and there are a couple of possibilities. And the other is the man who was on this show, Orrin Hatch, because Senator Hatch is a conservative Republican, but he's a senator with good relations with Democratic senators. And those are the two nominations, the two types of nominations that could get confirmed, I think, without very much trouble.

FOX NEWS SUNDAY, 06/03/01:

TONY SNOW: But as you learned when it was 50-50, you were able to extract some concessions from then-Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott. Now Republicans have a certain amount of leverage with you, as well. Are you going to grant them assurances that the president will at least be able to get his nominees voted on on the Senate floor?

SEN. DORGAN: Well, my expectation is that we're not going to hold up judicial nominations. These are lifetime appointments, so they're important, but we're not going to hold them up. I mean, I hope the president will consult with us and send us names that are names that we can approve. But my expectation is you will not see us do what was done to us in recent years in the Senate with judicial nominations.

BRIT HUME: So you're saying that judicial nominations will be acted on on the Senate floor even if there's a negative vote in committee?

DORGAN: I'm not saying that. If the president would send a terrible name, I mean, a perfectly awful candidate, there's no guarantee that it'll come out of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

HUME: Well, so what sort of guarantee are you giving here? That sounds like you're taking back what you just said, that they weren't going to get bottled up. Now you're saying they may very well be bottled up.

DORGAN: Not at all. My point is that, in recent years, Senator Hatch and the Judiciary Committee, rather, held nominees in committee--many of them took years, some of them never got out, some of them took two, three and four years. My feeling is we should not do that, and I don't think we will do that.

But I would hope that we'll get nominations from the president that can move through the committee and go through the floor to the Senate. It is not our intention as a caucus to hold them up.

HUME: Well, the Senate, the Republicans have indicated that they want some assurances of some kind that a nominee would at least get to the floor to be acted upon. I gather you can't grant that assurance now and would not grant that in exchange for their participation in a new organizing resolution for the Senate.

DORGAN: Not with respect to every nominee, but I'll bet you this. I'll bet Senator Daschle and our caucus will give the Republicans the assurances that we won't do what they did in recent years. We're not going to keep nominations bottled up for years, we're just not going to do that.

SNOW: Well, you keep saying that. Senator Hatch has argued on this program and others that, for instance out of the first, I don't know, some 300 judicial nominees that President Clinton submitted, only two were rejected. What's wrong with that?

DORGAN: Well, but you know that many of them were held up for a long, long period of time. Some of them never came out of the committee. When you talk about rejected, you're not talking about the ones that never got out of committee, and you're not telling us about the ones that were two, three and four years in the making. So...

SNOW: And that happened in the previous administration as well.

DORGAN: Yes, but, look, I mean, this is one element of this change of control, and we want lifetime appointments to the judiciary to be solid people and good candidates. We hope to work with the president to do that.

But I think the main issue this coming week is the change in control, the change in majority leader in the Senate that allows us to schedule the Senate floor. Not much has changed in terms of who's going to vote. The same 100 people will cast votes two weeks from now that did two months ago. But, you know, we're going to talk about education, health care, energy, the environment, foreign policy, in a way that allows the Senate to make some progress on these issues.

HUME: Senator, you just heard Senator Dorgan give us some sense of what the Democrats might be willing to do or not do on this question of judicial nominations in order to get the new Senate organizing resolution passed and establish their majorities on committees, something you could block by filibuster if you chose to do so.

What about what he said, and what about your willingness to go along with that? Is that enough?

SEN. SANTORUM: Well, no, I think we are going to look for some assurances to get judicial and other presidential nominees to the floor of the Senate.

I think, if you look at some of the, I think, rather strident language by some of the new committee chairmen, Senator Leahy in particular, I think we have cause for concern about whether our nominees are going to get through.

And we were very good about getting Clinton nominees through, contrary to what Senator Dorgan said. Ronald Reagan had the record for judicial appointments during his eight years. Bill Clinton was four short of that record. So he was second for the number of judicial appointments that were confirmed by the United States Senate.

To suggest that the Republicans held up nominees just doesn't make sense.

HUME: Well, you heard Senator Dorgan say that it's not their intention to do that, they want to work with you...

SANTORUM: Yes, it's very carefully worded.

HUME: ... and he suggested only really deeply outrageous nominations would run into trouble. What about that? Is that not enough?

SANTORUM: That's not what's being said by the committee chairmen. I mean, what's happening--what I'm hearing from Senator Leahy is that, if you're a conservative, you're not qualified. That kind of litmus test is just simply not acceptable.

SNOW: Do you think there are enough Republican senators willing to filibuster a reorganization if they do not get the kind of assurance you want, in terms of getting nominees voted for on the floor?

SANTORUM: I think what we believe as Republicans is that we extended the hand of bipartisanship earlier this year and gave the Democrats unprecedented power-sharing at a time when we had a one-vote majority. Now, they have a one-vote majority. Same situation, 50-49 instead of 51-50.

And what we're saying is, we need some bipartisanship here, and we're willing to give them, unlike what they gave us, a one-seat majority in all the committees, even though they didn't negotiate that with us.

We're willing to give them a one-seat majority, which is a greater advantage than what we had. But what we want in exchange for that is really some protection that government can continue to function here, and that is that executive appointments and nominees will at least have a fair opportunity to be heard on the United States Senate floor. And that's not guaranteeing passage, but at least the opportunity for them to be voted on.

SNOW: So, again, that means that your condition for organizing the Senate, and I presume you're speaking on behalf of your colleagues, is, if you don't get that assurance, then the Senate's just going to shut down for a while.

SANTORUM: If we don't get that assurance or some assurance, you know, in this vein, then I think we're going to have some hard times organizing, yes, that's right.

HUME: Which would mean that you'd have a situation where the Democrats would be in control of the body, they'd have the committee chairmen, but you'd have all these Republican-majority committees. And you'd be willing to live with that for a while, if necessary?

SANTORUM: I think that, you know, we're willing to be reasonable. I think we've seen in the past that we've been very reasonable in being bipartisan. But if that's what the Democrats want to have as the action, then that's what will occur.

TONY SNOW: Yes, but what can the president do? How does the president figure into this, Brit?

HUME: I think the president will stay out of this and should. He'll probably make simple statements like, ``I think my nominees deserve a fair shake. When I make a nominee to the court, I deserve to have it voted on by the full Senate and not bottled up in committee.''

That sounds rather appealing to the public even though bottling nominees up is a tradition that goes back as long as anybody can remember. But I think he can make it sound good.
And what the Republicans are asking for sounds kind of reasonable. And as long as they keep making the case, they may well win this debate, and they may get the assurances that they want.

MARA LIASSON: Look, this is going to have to be compromised in a bipartisan way. I mean, they're going to have to negotiate this just the way they negotiated the power-sharing agreement in the first place, and it might take a while to work it out.

HUME: You know, and they could--there are a lot of ways to compromise. They're saying judicial nominees. Well, the Republicans should reduce the demand to Supreme Court nominees. I mean, there are a lot of ways to do this. There's probably room for compromise here. Who knows, it might even work.

Affordable Housing for All Americans

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Tampa, Florida, to help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. The organization has affiliates in more than 2,000 communities in 76 nations worldwide. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes. The Tampa District of the United Methodist Church is sponsoring the homebuilding project.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of all Americans own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic families are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Low-Income Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Affordable Housing for All Americans

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Tampa, Florida, to help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. The organization has affiliates in more than 2,000 communities in 76 nations worldwide. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes. The Tampa District of the United Methodist Church is sponsoring the homebuilding project.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of all Americans own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic families are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Low-Income Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Affordable Housing for All Americans

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Tampa, Florida, to help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. The organization has affiliates in more than 2,000 communities in 76 nations worldwide. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes. The Tampa District of the United Methodist Church is sponsoring the homebuilding project.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of all Americans own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic families are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Low-Income Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Affordable Housing for All Americans

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Tampa, Florida, to help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. The organization has affiliates in more than 2,000 communities in 76 nations worldwide. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes. The Tampa District of the United Methodist Church is sponsoring the homebuilding project.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of all Americans own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic families are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Low-Income Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Affordable Housing for All Americans

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Tampa, Florida, to help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. The organization has affiliates in more than 2,000 communities in 76 nations worldwide. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes. The Tampa District of the United Methodist Church is sponsoring the homebuilding project.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of all Americans own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic families are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Low-Income Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Affordable Housing for All Americans

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Tampa, Florida, to help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. The organization has affiliates in more than 2,000 communities in 76 nations worldwide. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes. The Tampa District of the United Methodist Church is sponsoring the homebuilding project.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of all Americans own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic families are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Low-Income Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

The traditional practice is that White House staffers do not testify before Congress (absent, of course, some allegation of wrongdoing being investigated by Congress). We would need to check with Legislative Affairs, however, to see whether there has been any different practice for positions like yours. My belief is that there is no difference, but we obviously should check with Leg Affairs. Let me know how you wish to proceed with Leg Affairs -- namely, whether you wish to contact them yourself or want me to do so on your behalf.

Subject: Testifying before Congress

Brett - Just a follow up to my voice mail. I've been invited to testify before the House International Relations Committee which Congressman Henry Hyde chairs. I haven't had a conversation yet with WH Leg Affairs but Margaret LaMontagne actually wondered if I'm "allowed" to do such a thing. She indicated that she isn't. If you know the answer to this, I'd appreciate knowing as soon as possible. If you don't, please forward. Thanks much.

My 2 cents: Given the degree of angst from the Calif Republicans that we have heard and read, I tend to think the Judge or Tim also should go with Brad to really show the flag.

Gerry Parsky will attend the California Republican caucus lunch next Thursday to discuss, among other things, the judicial selection committees and how the congressmen can participate effectively in that process.
Given my responsibility for California district courts going forward, we decided it would be a good idea for me to join him at that session. He has also asked me to see if someone from Leg Affairs would like to join us, which I will do shortly. I wanted to make you all aware of this session so that you could come to represent our office in addition to or instead of me if you thought it advisable.

I'm curious what you found out about the overall picture on nominations. When are we likely to have nominees up for all or substantially all of the circuit courts? How are we doing on the districts? Is someone keeping track of the overall pipeline?

Promoting Responsible Fatherhood

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today at the National Summit on Fatherhood the President will announce significant funding increases for initiatives to help promote responsible fatherhood. The President will also call on Congress to pass bipartisan fatherhood legislation this year.

Background on the President's Fatherhood Initiative:

- The National Summit on Fatherhood was organized by the National Fatherhood Initiative, a non-partisan, non-sectarian civic initiative that promotes the goal of increasing the number of children who grow up with involved, committed and responsible fathers. The Summit was also supported by bipartisan Congressional, Senatorial, Gubernatorial and Mayoral task forces on fatherhood promotion.

- President Bush has had a long commitment to this issue. As Governor of Texas, he helped to launch the Texas Fatherhood Initiative – a statewide public awareness campaign to promote responsible fatherhood, coupled with strong grassroots and community leadership.

- Approximately 28% of America's children are living without a father in their home. More than a third live apart from their biological fathers. Forty percent of children in fatherless homes have not seen their fathers in more than a year. Millions of children live with fathers who are not actively involved in their lives. Children who live without active fathers are more likely to suffer from poverty, poor health, and emotional and psychological problems. These children are also more likely to have lower educational achievement, be victims of child abuse and engage in criminal behavior.

- President Bush's budget provides $64 million in FY02 as part of a five-year, $315 million effort to promote responsible fatherhood. This initiative will provide competitive grants to faith- and community-based organizations that promote successful parenting and strengthen marriage. It will also help unemployed or low-income fathers and their families to stay off welfare through job training and mentoring programs.

- The President's budget also increases funding for the Promoting Safe and Stable Families Program by $200 million to $505 million in FY02. States often do not have enough money to provide services that could either keep children with their families or support family reunification where it is appropriate. These funds will be used to help states keep children with their biological families whenever it is safe and appropriate, as well as to place children with adoptive families.

    - ✓ This new funding includes $67 million to support children whose parents have been incarcerated. This program, Mentoring Children of Prisoners, will help maintain parent-child connections during a parent's imprisonment and will aid in reunification after imprisonment. It is designed to work with successful model programs like Big Brothers-Big Sisters of America.

- President Bush has also taken a leadership role in promoting adoption. The tax relief bill that the President will sign permanently extends and increases the adoption tax credit from $5,000 per child to $10,000 per child for qualified adoption expenses. Hopefully, this will also encourage adoption of the more than 117,000 children in foster care who wait for a "forever family."

  - ✓ For special needs adoptions, it increases the credit from $6,000, for qualified adoption expenses, to $10,000, regardless of expenses. Parents who adopt children with special needs will benefit from this meaningful tax credit because it will help cover the unique adoption costs.

- The President calls on Congress to pass bipartisan fatherhood legislation this year. The President supports legislation that would:

  - ✓ Improve parenting skills through skills-based education, mentoring, disseminating information about good parenting practices, and related activities; and
  - ✓ Strengthen marriage through skills-based marriage education, mentoring, and related activities.

Promoting Responsible Fatherhood

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today at the National Summit on Fatherhood the President will announce significant funding increases for initiatives to help promote responsible fatherhood. The President will also call on Congress to pass bipartisan fatherhood legislation this year.

Background on the President's Fatherhood Initiative:

- The National Summit on Fatherhood was organized by the National Fatherhood Initiative, a non-partisan, non-sectarian civic initiative that promotes the goal of increasing the number of children who grow up with involved, committed and responsible fathers. The Summit was also supported by bipartisan Congressional, Senatorial, Gubernatorial and Mayoral task forces on fatherhood promotion.

- President Bush has had a long commitment to this issue. As Governor of Texas, he helped to launch the Texas Fatherhood Initiative – a statewide public awareness campaign to promote responsible fatherhood, coupled with strong grassroots and community leadership.

- Approximately 28% of America's children are living without a father in their home. More than a third live apart from their biological fathers. Forty percent of children in fatherless homes have not seen their fathers in more than a year. Millions of children live with fathers who are not actively involved in their lives. Children who live without active fathers are more likely to suffer from poverty, poor health, and emotional and psychological problems. These children are also more likely to have lower educational achievement, be victims of child abuse and engage in criminal behavior.

- President Bush's budget provides $64 million in FY02 as part of a five-year, $315 million effort to promote responsible fatherhood. This initiative will provide competitive grants to faith- and community-based organizations that promote successful parenting and strengthen marriage. It will also help unemployed or low-income fathers and their families to stay off welfare through job training and mentoring programs.

- The President's budget also increases funding for the Promoting Safe and Stable Families Program by $200 million to $505 million in FY02. States often do not have enough money to provide services that could either keep children with their families or support family reunification where it is appropriate. These funds will be used to help states keep children with their biological families whenever it is safe and appropriate, as well as to place children with adoptive families.

    - ✓ This new funding includes $67 million to support children whose parents have been incarcerated. This program, Mentoring Children of Prisoners, will help maintain parent-child connections during a parent's imprisonment and will aid in reunification after imprisonment. It is designed to work with successful model programs like Big Brothers-Big Sisters of America.

- President Bush has also taken a leadership role in promoting adoption. The tax relief bill that the President will sign permanently extends and increases the adoption tax credit from $5,000 per child to $10,000 per child for qualified adoption expenses. Hopefully, this will also encourage adoption of the more than 117,000 children in foster care who wait for a "forever family."

  - ✓ For special needs adoptions, it increases the credit from $6,000, for qualified adoption expenses, to $10,000, regardless of expenses. Parents who adopt children with special needs will benefit from this meaningful tax credit because it will help cover the unique adoption costs.

- The President calls on Congress to pass bipartisan fatherhood legislation this year. The President supports legislation that would:

  - ✓ Improve parenting skills through skills-based education, mentoring, disseminating information about good parenting practices, and related activities; and
  - ✓ Strengthen marriage through skills-based marriage education, mentoring, and related activities.
